

Australian Parliament
Joint Standing Committee on Migration
Submission no. 329

I believe that Australia is a great country to live in by reason of its foundational values and Christian heritage. I think it's fine for people of other cultures to migrate here particularly if they are subject to persecution or danger in their own land. Their culture can also bring variety and richness of experience to our country. However, if their influence extends to undermining or changing the basic values and heritage of our nation then I don't agree with the whole principles and agenda of multiculturalism and I think this is highly likely to happen regards